ALUMNI.

What does the ALUMNI association have to do with STUDENTS? The answer is plenty. The alumni association serves the university and its students by keeping alumni involved with and informed about the life of NU.

The association creates unique opportunities for students and alumni to interact and learn from one another, and promotes the concept of a lifelong relationship with the University of Nebraska. So next time you use our circle drive to hang a U-ie on R Street, stop in and say hi. You don't have to be gray-haired, cigar-smoking, red-polyester-pants-wearing guy to get involved with the alumni association. You're our future alumni and we're here for you now.

For more information about any of these student programs, contact Shelley Zaborowski, Director of Student Programs, shelleyzab@huskeralum.com, 472-4222 or 888-353-1874.

Student Alumni Association

Members of the Student Alumni Association assist the alumni association with various programs and projects including Senior Sendoff, Masters Week and the Official Nebraska Ring Tradition. SAA members have the opportunity to meet alumni, hone their leadership skills and make friends from all walks of campus life.

Homecoming Pizza Pass

Each fall during homecoming week, alumni cruise campus aboard Molley the Trolley and distribute free pizza and pop to the students constructing lawn displays.

All Stressed Out and Nowhere to Study

During finals week, all students are invited to take advantage of free snacks and solace at the Wick Alumni Center while preparing for final exams.

Masters Week

Each fall, five outstanding alumni are invited to campus to share their expertise with students in classes and at various campus events. The masters are also honored for their accomplishments.

Senior Sendoff

This graduation party for seniors, complete with dinner and a dance, marks the transition between being a student and an alumnus. All attendees receive a free year's membership in the Nebraska Alumni Association.

Cornhusker Yearbook

Dating back to the early 1900s, the Cornhusker Yearbook is an annual record of the highlights of the year at the University of Nebraska. The yearbook was phased out during the 1970s and has been recently reinstated by the alumni association and a team of students.
